iGot Questions

- What are the laws of bathing children on Shabbos or Yom Tov?
- Until what age are you allowed to ask a child to do melacha for you on Shabbos?
- At what age do we have to discourage children from doing something that benefits everyone (i.e. turning on a light in the play room)?
- Are you allowed to ask older children to do something for you before shkiya on Friday (once you have already lit candles)?
- Hashkafa: Please discuss the proper age to insist that your children are at the table at least for Kiddush and hamotzi.
- Is there a problem with closing up a diaper on Shabbos before throwing it away?
- Is is possible to kasher an electric oven for Pesach? If yes, how?
    - Food preparation for babies/children (mashing, chopping tiny pieces...)
    - Using wipes when changing diapers; antibacterial hand wipes
    - When a baby really needs diaper rash cream (thick paste/cream usually not permitted to be used on Shabbos) does it count as needing medicine?
    - Is it ever allowed to take a baby/child's temperature, not electronically, when it could be the difference between contacting doc or just resting, also if need to see if it's going down at all...
    - Having baby/small child do muktzah things for you: turn on/off light, toy
- We're undergoing construction at work and i'm now sharing a cubicle with a Jewish co-worker. She's not (yet) observant and I imagine will be bringing/eating chometz in our cubicle on Pesach. Other than cleaning my own area before Pesach, is there anything elseIi need to do?
- How does one remove dangerous muktzah items from a child's hands, mouth, or body or from child potentially touching the item (whether imminent or in anticipation of child being in the room the next day)? Such as a young baby eating crayons or small pieces of garbage from carpet.
